Five-day community Tall Ships Festival offers fun for all

by Dick Townsend-Smith

A MASSIVE five-day event for the whole community is just days away – and most of the events are absolutely free.

It's the eagerly-awaited Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Festival, which promises thrills and fun for all the family in an action packed programme of entertainment and activities.

From September 5-9 a fleet of more than 50 spectacular Tall Ships will be coming up the River Thames to moor in the borough. People will be able to explore many of the vessels themselves by going aboard – again absolutely free.

The vessels will be moored along the Greenwich and Woolwich stretches of the Thames, providing a fascinating and memorable backdrop to the event.

It is the first time in 25 years that such an event has come to London, and the first ever in Greenwich. The local festival follows the international Tall Ships race from Falmouth in Cornwall to the Isle of Wight. Its organisers, Sail Training International, chose Greenwich as the host port. The winning crew members will be presented with their prizes at the Queen's House in Greenwich on Saturday.

The festival promises fun for all, with a huge number of cultural activities, entertainments and attractions planned for the shoreline and in the town centres of Greenwich and Woolwich. See pages 12 and 13 for a taste of what's in store.

On Friday afternoon a parade of traditional Thames barges will progress along the river, followed on Sunday

Cars parking in cycling lane is a big pain

AS a pedestrian, cyclist and motorist for over 60 years I can sympathise with pedestrians who feel threatened by cyclists on the pavements.

However, part of the problem is cars parking in designated cycle lanes, which leaves the cyclist stuck between a rock and a hard place.

The law and enforcement on vehicles blocking these lanes urgently needs to be reviewed. Some pedestrians also seem to be unaware that certain pavements and footpaths are designated for both by both pedestrians and cyclists.

Mr Bryan Cockle, Kidbrooke

● A council spokesperson said: "We are grateful to Mr Cockle for increasing awareness of this issue. This is a tricky issue which is not unique to Greenwich. We would prefer to keep cycle lanes clear at all times but there are certain places where parking is necessary, for example where business deliveries can only take place by using cycle lanes at certain times.

At the moment the law does allow motorists to park in cycle lanes at certain times and this is shown by signs and road markings. We would support any initiative that encourages motorists to park carefully and keep cycle lanes free for cyclists."

Asian culture celebrated

THE Royal Borough's rich multicultural community was celebrated at this year's annual Asian Mela Festival.

The festival was a fun filled day that welcomed residents to celebrate Asian culture. A variety of colourful arts, crafts and food stalls, along with children's rides and live music were enjoyed by families and residents from all areas of the community.

The Mayor and Mayoress of Greenwich, Cllr Mick Hayes and Gillian Hayes attended the event along with Chair of the Festival Committee, Atma Singh, and former Councillor Dr Jagir Sekhon OBE.

Atma Singh said: "The event is a celebration of Asian culture with the purpose to create community cohesion and celebrate the rich contribution of Asians to the Royal Borough of Greenwich and surrounding areas in South East London.

The Mayor, Cllr Hayes, said: "The festival was a brilliant success and a wonderful celebration of the rich and significant contribution made by the Asian Community to the Royal Borough of Greenwich."

The event's roots date back to the very first Asian Mela in the borough in 1991. It was revived in 2011.

'We want to help residents'

by Dick Townsend-Smith

POLICE in the borough have launched a campaign to show how they are tackling the sorts of crimes that cause the biggest worries to residents.

Using a mix of borough wide, local and street level messages, the campaign aims to raise awareness of what the police are doing to deal with crimes that have the biggest impact on people and their neighbourhoods.

Although crime is falling across London year on year, research shows that confidence in the police remains low in some areas and boroughs. The police recognise that giving people very local information about police action in their area helps to increase their confidence convincing them to report crime, share information and to generally help the police do their job and provide a better service to meet their needs.

Royal Borough Commander Helen Millichap said: "I want those who live, work or visit Greenwich to hear about what their police officers are doing to cut crime and improve safety. We need to be responsive to local issues and problems, and this is a way of telling people how we are doing in a new and exciting way.

RIGHT MESSAGE: Borough Police Commander Helen Millichap

"I am proud of what Greenwich officers achieve every day, but I know we can only do this with the help and support of the public. Many of these successes are due to the public coming forward and telling us about problems. How we communicate and inform people about what happens next is very important. A campaign like this is part of our wider commitment to listen, respond and improve our service to the public."

In the borough, the police say they have:

● Worked with schools to promote personal safety and reduce robbery, leading to 110 fewer victims of mobile phone crime in 12 months.

● Put extra patrols and CCTV in robbery hotspots leading to 106 fewer robberies over 12 months.

● Worked with partners, using intelligence-led operations and extra patrols to make the borough safer, with 403 fewer crimes in the last year.

● Launched plain clothes operations in Greenwich town centre and the Peninsula, cutting personal thefts by 159 in 12 months.

● Put extra patrols in Eltham High Street and targeted prolific thieves, leading to 101 fewer crimes than last year

● Cut anti-social behaviour by enforcing ASBOs and patrolling at peak times and places, resulting in 1,746 fewer complaints from residents in the last year.

The police, with help from the Domestic Violence and Organised Crime Units funded by the Royal borough of Greenwich, have arrested 1,678 people for domestic abuse in the last year and supported victims with a dedicated team, reducing repeat offences in 8 out of 10 high risk cases. The police have also made 252 arrests, seized over £400,000 worth of drugs, secured 94 charges and already sent 31 gang members to prison in the fight against gangs in Greenwich.

morning by a Royal Pageant - featuring Her Majesty The Queen's own rowing vessel, the Gloriana will sail with an escort of other traditional rowing boats.

The festival means the eyes of the sailing world will be on Royal Greenwich, and tens of thousands of fans, enthusiasts and tourists are expected to arrive in the borough to join locals in soaking up the atmosphere. It is also providing a unique opportunity for many local young people to take part, and gain first-hand experience of the ultimate sailing vessels.

This all spells good news for businesses of all shapes and sizes - from hotels, restaurants and cafes, to specialist and souvenir shops. Many will have special offers to encourage customers through their doors. See report on page 14.

Cllr Denise Hyland, the leader of the council, said: "The Tall Ships festival will be one of the great events of 2014. Supported by our rich maritime heritage, we will be able to show the world what we have to offer, both to enthusiasts and to sightseers. Local businesses are fully supporting the event, and I am sure they will be pleased with the extra revenue the festival will generate. I would urge local people not to miss out on this spectacle. It will be many, many years before they have another chance to see something like this on their doorstep."

The festival will end next Tuesday (September 9), when all the ships take part in a parade of sail. During the afternoon they will go up river from Woolwich, through the Thames Barrier, crossing the Prime Meridian line, then turning at Greenwich to go downstream together, then into the Thames Estuary to disperse and head for home.

The 'Cathedral Five' become shipmates

MEETING UP: Sapphire Hales, Brendon Gilhooley, Cllr Denise Hyland, Edward Neville, Richard Upton, Ethan O'Neill and Megan Barrett. (Photo, Warren King)

by Dick Townsend-Smith

FIVE young people who are taking part in the Falmouth to Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Regatta met each other for the first time at the Town Hall in Woolwich last Wednesday (August 27).

They are nicknamed the Cathedral Five because they are being sponsored by property developers Cathedral Group. They met Cllr Denise Hyland, the leader of the Royal Borough, and Cathedral Group Chief Executive Richard Upton, and given their Tall Ships T-shirts to wear.

The Cathedral Five are due to sail in one of the largest ships in the regatta, the Polish 108-metre long vessel Dar Młodzieży. In English the name means

The Gift of Youth.

Mr Upton announced that his company would provide career advice and work experience to the five, and on their return they will pay a visit Cathedral's offices close to The Shard. He said: "I look forward to meeting the Cathedral Five again and hearing about the regatta. I will invite some of my young team to talk about their careers and how they progressed from school to the jobs they hold today. We will arrange a mentoring programme and work experience for the future. Cathedral is committed to helping young people and creating jobs; we will retain links with our sailors."

Cathedral are one of a number of Tall Ships sponsors which also includes Berkley Homes and Barratt London.

Grants for voluntary organisations

VOLUNTARY and community groups are being invited to give their views on how the council plans to provide grants to the borough's voluntary sector.

The Royal Borough of Greenwich values the contribution of the voluntary sector that improves the quality of life for many in the borough and organisations can apply for grant funding from Monday, September 15, to Wednesday, October 22. Money will be allocated depending on how much the project or organisation contributes to the council's priorities.

Dangerous insecticide taken off the shelves

by Dick Townsend-Smith

AEROSOLS of a banned insecticide have been taken off the shelves by Greenwich Trading Standards from a cash-and-carry warehouse in Abbey Wood.

Officers removed 22 cans of Baygon, which had been imported from West Africa. The pesticide is banned in the UK, and contains toxic ingredients which are also dangerous to the environment. A gardener working for Southwark Council who used it had to be hospitalised after suffering breathing difficulties.

It was the second time Baygon had been found on sale in the borough. It is highly toxic, and is also a skin irritant.

Trading Standards say the cash-and-carry owner is helping them with their inquiries to trace the importer of the banned product. The owner has also handed over 75 bars of counterfeit soap, called Asepso. The packaging names the original registered British company which manufactured it, and which went out of business more than 100 years ago.

Cllr Jackie Smith, the council's cabinet member for community safety and environment, said: "Our Trading Standards team are the borough's first line of defence when dealing with potentially dangerous goods that are on sale and available locally. But I would ask all our residents to be vigilant when shopping, particularly if a product seems unusually cheap or of dubious origin."

● For more on trading standards visit www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/info/200098/trading_standards

BANNED: This is the banned Baygon insecticide. If you see it on sale locally, or you are a business which has it in stock, call Greenwich Trading Standards on 020 8921 8223

The B16 bus is back

THE B16 bus service that links Kidbrooke with Eltham and Bexleyheath is to be re-routed so that it will once again serve the Tudway Road part of Kidbrooke Village. The announcement from Transport for London (TfL) follows lobbying by local residents and the council. The B16 had been diverted away from some roads on the estate because of the large scale redevelopment work taking place. A new bus stand has been built close to Kidbrooke Station at Tudway Road, allowing the B16 to run to this stop, where it will terminate. The new B16 route through Tudway Road will start from Saturday (September 6). For full details of all bus routes and timetables go to www.tfl.gov.uk

18th century pumps restored

Objects back in working order at naval college

by Simon Banks

RESTORATION work to flood life back into historic water pumps at the Old Royal Naval College has been completed.

It is part of a scheme to bring iconic features of the building back to life.

The water pumps date back to the 18th century when they were worked hard in a time when the famous Navy base was a hospital for injured seamen and retired shipmen.

There are four large pumps situated outside the four main buildings along with two smaller ones located in the courtyard.

Iron work conservation specialist Brian Hall and his team in Charlton have been tasked with filtering the life back into the features, he said: "I think restoration of historic items is immensely important, even though when they are restored they won't be used functionally they are important to our social understanding and to our environment."

"It has been very interesting working on them so far. It is a very slow progress and almost like archaeology as we discover new things. You don't go into it hammer and tongs, you take the slow process of reading the item, conducting analysis and finding the best way to treat it," he added.

At their functioning peak before piped water was installed, the pumps would have been manually operated with two people needed to handle the larger pumps and the smaller ones solo operated.

The handle would have been levered up and down while a plug made of lime wood and leather manoeuvred to create a vacuum carrying water upward. The larger pumps carried water to lead tanks indoor and the smaller pumps supplied water to buckets and containers for use in the courtyards.

Brian has lived in Greenwich for 20 years and has thoroughly enjoyed working on the local project. He has worked all over London and even abroad.

The first three water pumps to be restored were taken from the King William building, Queen Mary building and the King Charles Court, now occupied by Trinity Laban Conservatoire of Music and Dance.

He said: "The biggest challenges were working on the site during a busy time frame and also working on a central pivot part of the pump that sits against the wall linking the pump together. The piece was corroded and damaged, so we had to make a new part for it."

"It has been an interesting experience working on them because a lot of the work we do normally is on artwork and decorative pieces and these are structural and industrial and it is interesting to see the engineering behind them and how they were made, that has been very satisfying."

Work on the first two pumps is now complete. They cost just under £3,000 each to restore and they have returned to the ORNC.

Greenwich's primary schools among best in Britain

by Dan Stephens

GREENWICH'S primary schools have proved they are among the best in the country at helping pupils to make progress, the latest national results have confirmed.

This year's data has revealed that 11-year-olds' achievement in maths, reading and writing exceed the national average in all the main measures of achievement and have improved on 2013 results in every category.

Impressively, Greenwich came equal fourth in the entire country and equal third in London for level 4 and above in reading, writing and maths, seen as the most significant gauge of achievement.

Notably, Greenwich saw 92 per cent of pupils achieving at least a level 4 or more in reading, 2 per cent up on last year and 2 per cent above the national average. There was also a 7 per cent increase in pupils achieving level 5 or higher in reading, up 55 per cent – which is 5 per cent above the national average.

Improvements in reading are particularly welcomed as this is an area that Greenwich Council has focused on improving this year. For reading at level 4, the royal borough is ranked equal fifth nationally.

Cllr John Fahy, deputy leader and cabinet member for children's services said: "The results released show further improvement on the already excellent levels of achievement by 11 year-olds in the Royal Borough of Greenwich. On every indicator of achievement we are within the top quarter nationally, and mostly in the top ten."

"The fact that Greenwich has been placed equal fourth in the country and third in London for level 4 and above in reading, writing and mathematics is something that we can be incredibly proud of. Our excellent results in reading are also very pleasing as we worked particularly hard throughout the year to further improve in this area."

Trumpeting in a new era

NEW-LOOK music centres are to be ready by the end of September, the Royal Borough of Greenwich Music Hub has announced.

As well as having been rebranded, the centres are to take up residence in two new locations, Eltham Hill School and Shooter's Hill Post-16 Campus.

They will both offer fantastic facilities for rehearsing and performing music.

The new centres have been designed to replace the established ones, which were set up in 2001.

The earlier centres were opened to cater for the borough's growing number of young musicians and to offer them the chance to receive extra tuition on their instruments and to experience the thrill of playing alongside other musicians in an ensemble environment.

The new centres have been conceived to build on the success of their forerunner and in particular will seek to broaden the opportunities for ensemble rehearsal and performance.

This emphasis on performance is reflected in the birth of three distinct borough youth ensembles which include a string orchestra, a big band and the aptly named 'Fusion Ensemble', a group dedicated to performing an exciting blend of rock, jazz and world music.

While applications to join these borough bands are assessed on the basis of audition where applicants will need to show evidence of good existing musical skills; the centres will be hosting new 'junior departments' from September.

These will offer access to young musicians from a wider band of ability ranges than was previously possible.

The borough ensembles have already performed publicly at Blackheath Halls, The Great music hub and we look forward to hearing more of their public performances.

"Music is a wonderful medium that highlights many skills, including perseverance and dedication and, in groups such as these, working with others and making friends to produce something in which many can share a sense of achievement."

The junior departments cater for young musicians in school Year 5 upwards.

These students will have the chance to progress into the senior department – and a place in one of the borough ensembles, once they have reached the right level.

As well as offering students ensemble rehearsal, small group tuition and some extra supporting musical activities, membership of one of the centres also guarantees free access to an instrument through the loan agreement.

In return, all students are expected to contribute to the musical life of the centre, attending regular rehearsals and participating in public performances.

Royal Greenwich Music Centres run on Saturdays from 9.30am-12.30pm in term time. The fees are £10 per morning session (£100 per term). Bursaries may be available.

Don't miss your chance to climb aboard Tall Ships

ONE highlight of the Tall Ships Festival will be the chance to explore some of stunningly-beautiful vessels.

Thousands of visitors are expected over the weekend, and many will want to go on board and find out more about the classic ships. So the Royal Borough of Greenwich has organised for residents to have priority access to go on board and visit one of the vessels, the Shtandart, on Saturday (September 6) from 10am to noon, and at the same time the following day (Sunday).

The Shtandart is one of the stars of the Tall Ship fleet will be moored at Woolwich Pier, Royal Arsenal. Numbers are limited and access will be on a first come, first served, basis. People will need to bring with them proof that they live in the borough.

The Shtandart was built in the 1990s by volunteers on the banks of Russia's Neva River, using traditional materials and methods. It is an exact replica of a famous frigate the volunteers' ancestors would have built in just the same way – the original Shtandart. She was the first ship in the Baltic Fleet of the Imperial Russian Navy, the ship which Peter the Great built with his own hands using the knowledge of shipbuilding he had learned while working incognito in the Deptford docks at the turn of the 18th century. In this replica above the gun-deck everything is just as it was on the Tsar's flagship. Below the gun-deck it has all the necessary modern equipment of a working Tall Ship, with two 560 horsepower diesel engines.

ROYAL GREENWICH Tall Ships Festival

September 5th - 9th 2014

by Simon Banks

THE Royal Borough of Greenwich is all set to welcome residents and visitors alike to the Tall Ships Festival.

Majestic Tall Ships from around the world will be gracing the borough's Thames shoreline from Friday to Tuesday (September 5 to 9) for what will be an unmissable, once-in-a-lifetime event, with fun, excitement and entertainment on offer for people of all ages. It is the first time in 25 years that such an event has come to London, and the first time ever in Greenwich.

This pull-out guide lists many of the activities taking place, so no-one need miss a thing. At the event there will be a flotilla of more than 50 vessels moored locally, and many of them will welcome visitors on board, absolutely free.

They include the Mercedes, which will drop anchor at Woolwich. It is a beautiful ocean-going fishing vessel, built in the Netherlands in 1958 with more than 14 years' experience on the seas. It was then redesigned and built to sail international waters and is now used as a training vessel for young people.

It will be joined in Woolwich by fellow Dutch ship, The Tecla. Built as a fishing boat for herring in Vlaardingen, South Holland, The Tecla is now privately owned by a family and is one of the most original and beautiful sail training vessels in Europe.

The Pelican will be letting residents and visitors of Greenwich climb aboard. Built in 1948, The Pelican is unique among Square Riggers, with her hull derived from the elite French clippers of the late 19th century. She is designed principally as a sail-training ship.

During the festival visitors to Woolwich will be spoilt for choice when it comes to getting to know a Tall Ship. The largest British ship, The Tenacious, will be stopping by and is specially designed to enable people with disabilities to sail.

One of the most eye-catching ships taking part in the Tall Ships Regatta, The Gulden Leeuw, was chosen from a large number of vessels to be one of the ships to be crewed by the borough's trainee sailors. It will also be mooring in Woolwich. The 70-metre vessel was constructed in the 1930s to be used as an ocean-going research ship but became a sail-training vessel in 2000 and was totally transformed to become one of the finest sail training vessels afloat.

Young Greenwich residents and sailing enthusiasts have taken on a remarkable experience by enrolling on a sail-training programme that aims to empower young people while offering them the opportunity to learn new skills by being a crew member aboard a Tall Ship. Thirty members of this lucky crew will be aboard the Gulden Leeuw set to dock in Woolwich, awaiting crowds of enthusiastic visitors.

There will also be a number of fun-filled attractions and entertainment on offer to be enjoyed by residents and visitors suitable for all ages over the course of the festival. Events will range from market stalls, street animation and performances, live music and fireworks displays as well as headlining events such as the Music Festival Extravaganza in Woolwich on Friday September 5 and the Tall Ships Crew Parade on Saturday September 6.

Fish 'n' ships

Phil Barker learns how a Greenwich arts hub will be marking the Tall Ships Festival

IN THE SWIM: ornamental fish made from recycled material adorn the walls at the gallery, below, where visitors are welcomed by a giant frog

THERE'S an enormous amount of talent in the Royal Borough of Greenwich - photographers, painters, sculptors, jewellers, poets and writers of both literature and music. So Made in Greenwich is the ideal place to give them an outlet for their work whilst they toil, at times barely emerging from their workplaces and homes.

Just a few yards along Creek Road in Greenwich nestles this marvelous refuge of local talent which, upon closer inspection, offers an Aladdin's cave of unique art treasures.

Each individual piece is set on display in this superb gallery and upon consultation with the enthusiastic and ever, knowledgeable Edward and Irene Hill who run the gallery, you are quickly enthused with the history of the piece and appraised of the artist involved and the inspiration that led towards the creation of it.

There's some wonderful ceramics on display and I have to admit I bought three pieces entitled 'Celery', Glass and Semi-Precious stones and a particular display caught not only my eye but piqued my curiosity. What, at first, I thought to be glass mosaic fish was in fact reclaimed pieces of glass, from the River Thames and crafted into these dynamic shapes. Along side were more pictures that again, upon closer inspection, were broken pieces of pottery and old clay pipes put together to create a new form and a new life.

Unlike many places that invite you to wander and look, this is a gallery that wants you to get involved with the pieces on show and also with the many special events that are held in the 'Hot Room' in the back. They want your views and opinions but most of all for you to take part in it.

That's why during the Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Festival (September 5-9) they will be hosting a mixed and varied show called Sail in which established and less well known local artists will give their interpretation of what it's like to be on or near boats. Everyone, children included, is invited to bring in sketches of the Tall Ships and they'll be displayed on a dedicated wall of the gallery until September 21.

In the meantime, next time you're in Greenwich pop-in and say hello to Edward and Irene. You can't miss them just look for the giant frog in the window.

Made in Greenwich is open Tuesday to Sunday 11am-5.30pm (11am-7pm Fri & Sat) at 432 Creek Road, Greenwich SE10 9SW. Visit www.madeingreenwich.co.uk

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.

IMPORTANT NOTICE FOR ROYAL BOROUGH TENANTS WHO ARE MOVING

DON'T GET A BILL AFTER YOU LEAVE

Under the conditions of your tenancy agreement, you have a responsibility to leave your property in an acceptable state of repair. We may visit you to check this. If we consider your property is in an unacceptable condition, you may be prevented from moving or be recharged for work.

To avoid getting an unwelcome bill, follow these rules:

- Repair any damage caused to the property by you, your family or visitors to your home.
- Make good any changes you have made to your property e.g. put back any doors that you have removed.
- Make sure your garden is not overgrown and you have cleared all garden waste.
- Clear all your items from the inside and the outside of the property. This includes any loft space, external cupboards or sheds.
- Return all the keys to the Royal Borough's offices no later than midday on Monday (or Tuesday if it is a Bank Holiday). You will be charged a further week's rent if you do not return your keys on time.

If you leave repairs that are your responsibility, or items that require disposal you will be charged the cost of this work.

Special Collection Service

The Royal Borough offers a Special Collection Service for tenants who are moving and want to dispose of something big and bulky, like a sofa or a fridge, and even unwanted clothes and other textiles.

Simply contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661 and tell them where you live and what you would like taken away.

Items we will collect include:

Fridges, freezers, washing machines, beds, sofas, clothes and carpets (carpets must be cut up and tied into manageable bundles that one person can carry).

Items we DO NOT collect include:

Fitted kitchens, bathroom suites, boilers, sheds, fences and rubble.

For further information, please contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661.

Football's coming home

Football fanatics can join in the fun at the Woolwich United Football Tournament

by Simon Banks

FOOTBALL fever is set to take hold of the borough next month as the Woolwich United community football tournament kicks off.

Football fanatics who are enjoying the start to the new football season have even more to look forward to with spaces available for teams who would like to compete in the free community 6-a-side tournament at Charlton Park on October 11.

Cllr Miranda Williams, cabinet member for culture and creative industries, said: "We are pleased to be supporting this project which is the only one of its kind in London. There is a strong partnership of local organisations involved in the project – each of which has a track record in using sport to bring people together as well as supporting individuals to become healthier and more confident individuals."

Matt Horne, Partnership Manager at the Charlton Athletic Community Trust, said: "We are delighted to be part of this unique event that has never been done before to this scale. We hope the tournament provides the opportunity for the community to come together, integrate and enjoy themselves through sport."

Teams wishing to participate in the tournament are advised to enter now to avoid disappointment, there will be two football tournaments on the day with one open to adults aged 18 and over and the other for young people aged 14-17. Woolwich United welcomes teams to enter from schools, youth centres, sports clubs, faith groups, community organisations, or just friends and families who live in the borough.

The tournament is a much anticipated sporting event that is set to offer friendly, enjoyable and social football to residents, with proceedings expected to get competitive in the cup finals where the champions and runners-up will be awarded with prizes including the prestigious Woolwich United Community Cup for both competitions.

The top performing eight teams will be invited to play in the new Woolwich United 5-a-side league at the Waterfront Leisure Centre, which will also get under way in October. The eight teams will be also be given free entry to this new local indoor football league, fixtures will be played weekly on a Wednesday between 6.00pm-8.00pm.

If football is not your thing then keep a look out for Woolwich United Basketball and the range of new dance classes that start this month too. Teams wishing to enter should email amelia.allen@cact.org.uk with the team name and list of up to 8 players per team with players names and addresses and postcodes included in the email.

"MAKE YOUR HOME YOUR CASTLE"

As families grow, often their requirements for their home will change. Sometimes moving to a new home can be beyond your budget and often is a stressful experience. Refurbishing your home is a great way to ensure your home meets your new requirements, reduces the cost involved in moving and buying a new home and, in most cases, increases the value of your home.
